SS8 Networks Adds to Executive Team with Key Sales Appointment

SS8 appoints technology industry veteran as Vice President of Global Sales

SAN JOSE, CA, June 13, 2007 – SS8 Networks announced today the appointment of Jim Della Chiesa as vice president of global sales. In this position, Della Chiesa will be responsible for overall management of the global sales force and channel partners as well as developing and driving sales as service providers ramp up deployment of SS8 Networks' lawful intercept solutions worldwide.

“SS8 is at an exciting point in the U.S. and abroad as service providers on the home front move quickly to meet FCC CALEA requirements and international service providers work with their own government agencies on lawful intercept,” said Dennis Haar, president and CEO for SS8 Networks. “Jim is a seasoned sales executive with over 30 years of experience in developing and managing sales teams and his extensive knowledge will be invaluable to us as we scale our operations to meet the needs of our global customer base.”

Prior to joining SS8 Networks, Della Chiesa served as vice president of sales for the Americas for IEX, a NICE systems company, where he helped grow the software solutions business over the past five years to record breaking levels.

Previously, Della Chiesa served in a variety of senior level management roles at Aspect Communications, a provider of business communications solutions. These roles included central U.S. and Canadian vice president of sales, and general manager of EMEA (Europe, Middle East and Africa) business development. As central U.S. and Canadian vice president of sales for Aspect, he generated the region's highest ever revenues. He also held positions at Xerox Corporation, Octel Communications and VMX. Della Chiesa holds a BA from Indiana University.

About SS8 Networks
